Summary

Technically a prequel.

Harry knew his boys were hiding something. He hoped they knew they could come to him or their other father at anytime if they were having problems. He would just have to wait until they were ready.

Will was worried about how their fathers would react to their secret. This was murder they were talking about, even if its the murder of an even worse criminal than they. Dex hadn't been able to contain his urges anymore though so they had done it. They had taken a rapist off the streets and he was currently tied up on a metal table they had bought covered in plastic along with the rest of the room. Will and Dex were both wearing a plastic apron and covers on their shoes to stop any blood splatter from hitting their clothes along with a plastic face covering that was worn kind of like a hat.

The rapist was still unconscious but was starting to stir after the drugs were wearing off from his system. He blinked his eyes open squinting at the bright light shinning at his face. Realizing he couldn't move he started to grunt in panic, the plastic wrapped around his mouth as a gag stopping him from speaking.

You are a despicable man, Russel Wilkins, raping little kids to get yourself off. We are your judge jury and executioner, and we have have judged you guilty and to be executed." Will and Dex intoned together. The mans struggles increasing after each word until he exhausted himself.

Will and Dex took turns cutting into him, Will letting Dex take a little longer in the hopes to appease his darkness. After awhile though they grew bored the man had passed out from the pain 5 times already and it wasn't satisfying anymore. Will and Dex looked at each other and nodded both butting a hand on the hilt of a knife before stabbing it into the mans heart, and then cutting his neck as a just incase.

Dex got started on cutting the body while will moved to start burning their everything but their tools.

Once everything was cleaned up they burned the body and last of all the apron footies and face masks.

Will watched Dex and could see the darkness receding, will sighed happily his brother would be alright for awhile.

Page Break

Will could tell Dex was getting anxious about keeping this from their fathers, they had discussed it thoroughly and they both decided to tell them.

Walking up to a concerned looking Harry they looked at each other one more time for reassurance. "Dad we have something we need to tell you." Dex said.

Harry nodded and then said something that shocked them in their entirety. "It was the rapist wasn't it?"

"H-How did you know?" Will stuttered.

" I've known that Dex was different since I found him, I figured it was a matter of time."

"O-Oh."

"I'm going with you next time." Harry warned.

"Me as well." Their dad says.

And that was that. The murder that brought their family together..... mostly. (Cant forget about Deb)

End Notes

I'll probably add more detail and stuff at a later time but this is it for the moment. I quite often reread my works so I can add more detail and correct additional spelling errors I missed.
